GEOLOGIC LITERATURE ON NORTH AMERICA, 1785-1918.

By JOHN M. NICKLES.

POLITECHNIKA GDAŃSKA ZAKŁAD GEOLOGII

PART I. BIBLIOGRAPHY.

INTRODUCTION.

The bibliography forming Part I of this compilation includes papers relating to the geology, paleontology, petrology, and mineralogy of North America—specifically, the United States, the Dominion of Canada and Newfoundland, the Arctic regions north of the continent, Greenland, Mexico, Central America, Panama, and the West Indies, including Trinidad—and also the Hawaiian Islands. Geographic and descriptive writings and accounts of travels with incidental mention of geologic facts are not included. Textbooks published in America and works general in character by American authors are given, but general papers by foreign writers are excluded unless they have appeared in American publications. Papers by American writers on the geology of other parts of the world are not listed.

The papers of each author are listed in chronologic order by years with no definite order of arrangement in a year. For reference from Part II, the index (Bulletin 747), the last two figures of the year of publication, with a letter added if there is more than one paper in the year, have been used as a number placed in black-faced type before a title. The date on the title page of a publication has been accepted as the date of issue unless it is known to be grossly erroneous; in that case the real date has been added in brackets. In references to publications appearing in parts the date of the part cited has been used if it is given. If no date appears on a publication, the year of issue has been supplied and placed in brackets at the end of the citation; for a few publications, even the approximate year of issue could not be ascertained.

This compilation is in the main a cumulation of the series of bibliographies of North American geology issued by the United States Geological Survey as Bulletins 44 (1886), 75 (1887–89), 91 (1890), 99 (1891), included in 127 (1732–1891); 130, 135, 146, 149, 156, 162, and 172, cumulated in 188 and 189 (1892–1900); 203, 221, 240, and 271, cumulated in 301 (1901–1905); and 372 (1906–07), 409 (1908), 444 (1909), 495 (1910), 524 (1911), 545 (1912), 584 (1913), 617 (1914), 645 (1915), 665 (1916), 684 (1917), and 698 (1918), not previously cumulated. Many titles not found in these bulletins have been added as a result of the examination of the bibliographies on particular subjects issued by the Survey and many other special bibliographies and from other sources. It is hoped that little of importance has been overlooked.

The magnitude of the work has compelled the elimination of all but the title of the paper, from which unimportant parts have been omitted, and the citation, which has been greatly abbreviated. In the citation of serials a colon immediately follows the number of the volume and is immediately followed by the figures for the inclusive pages. If the volume is in a numbered series other than the first, this number is in parentheses immediately before the volume number. The year of publication is placed in parentheses at the end of the citation. Between the pages and the date "il" means figures of fossils and "map" that a geologic map forms part of the paper or accompanies it. For independent publications the number of pages, the place of publication and date, not in parentheses, are given. An explanation of the abbreviations used follows.
